U. S. TROOPS WILL LEAVE SHORTLY FOR BEHIND LINES

Soldiers Put Through Eight Hours Of Hard Drill Each Day.

A French Seaport, July 7.—The American troops to-day entered on the final steps of the mobilization that prepare them to leave within a few days for a permanent training camp somewhere behind the firing line. The inloading of supplies is almost fir ished and rolling stock is being concentrated here preparatory to the departure if the troops. The days have been used proftably for a double purpose.

The more important one was to put the majority of the soldiers through a vigorous grind of eight full hours each day. French officers who had seen service at the front took part in these ex ercises in order to give the benefit of their experience to the American sol-diers. The drills included a daily plunge in the sea, this phase of the sanitation programme made easy by the proximity of the camp to the ocean.

The other advantage taken of the time spent here was to employ smaller to put the final touches on the camp so that it wil. be in first-class shape The camp, in the last few days, has been expanded enormously until today date a large number of men. Water has been piped from the town and the sys tem is equipped with every modern de-similar mobilization bases the American system of living in tents or wood en shacks will be followed, but when they arrive at a permanent camp the will be billeted among the townspeople

Few if any of the soldiers know just where they are to be sent, but all are enthusiastic at the prospect of getting nearer the scene of action. Their spir-its are fine and their health is of the best with the exception of a few cases of mumps. The men have swamped the officers of their companies with deluge of letters that must pass thru a censorship

Sincerity Of French Gratitude Eviden Everywhere, Says Pershing.

Paris, July 7 .- "The sincerity and depth of French gratitude to America was evident everywhere," said Maj. Gen Pershing, the American command er, in speaking to-day of the reception given to the American troops which pa rade in Paris on the Fourth of July was affecting to see women, children and French soldiers marching along with our men. I feel that our presenc in France is appreciated deeply and that it is having an admirable effect, as our people at home. It was the mos impressive parade I ever saw."

The General was reluctant at first to make any statement, but the French demonstration impressed him as so extraordinary that he wished to make it clear that the troops in France under-stood the spirit in which the Frenci received them, and appreciated it. In his dealings with the French military authorities and members of the French Government the General encounters the same spirit of sympathetic good will.

The American soldiers think that "Sammies," the popular French name for them, is a pleasing one, suggesting that they are Uncle Sam's men. That seems to be the word which will be used colloquially in France to correspond with "Tommies," for the British, and for "Pollus," for the French.

CLIP THIS AND PIN ON WIFE'S DRESSER

Cincinnati man tells how to shrivel up corns or callouses so they lift off with fingers.

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati au-thority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callous stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callous dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callous from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If him to order a small bottle for you.

CATLETTSBURG NEWS

Measrs. P. H. Meehan, H. M. Robertson, L. M. Pease and C. A. Shepherd, representing the American Dressler tunnel kilns, of New York City, have gone to other points after having com-pleted the kiln for the Sanitary manufacturing plant of Kenova. Messrs Mechan. Shepherd and Pease go to Newcastle, Pa., and Mr. Robertson to Zanesville, Ohio, where they will establish kilns in manufactories in the respective cities. There are only four tunnel kilns in the world at the present time, the one at Kenova being the largest and it is a real curiosity and required a long time and extreme skill and workmanship in the building. This company was tuilding kilns in Belgium at the outbreak of the war with Germany. The engineers in charge of the work were so interested in the work that they refused to leave the place where engaged and consequently were taken prisoners by the German arms and held and are now being fed by the English government. The young men who have been in charge of the plant at Kenova had become great social fa-vorites here and will be missed from society circles. Mr. Meehan was the chief engineer in charge of this great piece of work. He was selected by the company out of a vast number of engineers to superintend the construction of the kiln.

Died At Hospital. Mrs. Nancy Wigington-Dalton died at a hospital at Huntington after a long and lingering illness Several of her children were at her bedside. She was 53 years old, was a member of the Baptist church and was well respected and esteemed. The body was brought here to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wayna Damron, and accompanied by her children was taken to the old home at Dunlow, W. Va., for interment.

Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. John McClure had the pleasure of entertaining four cousins of Mr. McClure at a noon dinner. They were Prof. J. B. McClure, of Louisa, J. M. McClure Bluefield, S. M. McClure, of Huntington, and little daughter, Eliz abeth, and A. H. McClure, of Yuma Arizona. The three former came here to meet the latter brother, who has arrived from the west for a visit.

A WARNING AGAINST

THREATENED DANGER-

It is the hope that the existence of tuberculosis in any form will be con-sidered by all medical examiners as a bar to enlistment in the army and navy. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has sent resolutions to the President, the Council of National Defense and the Secretaries of the army and navy urging the importance of a rigid exami-nation for the disease or persons with a history of it to prevent the spread of tuberculosis among the men, through the breaking down of afflicted persons A tendency to the disease develops rapidly under the stress and rigors of army life and the experience of the French armies in the field, a large number of whose men have become invalids, should make us use every pre caution to prevent a similar result in ours. The most highly trained men available should be utilized for the examinations, which should be continued from time to time in the camps for the purpose of detectnig any obscure tubercular lesions. The Kentucky Tu-berculosis Commission has arranged to offer the services of the best trained doctors in the State for tuberculosis examinations, and will co-operate in every way to detect tuberculosis in the enlisted men who may become a charge on the government. The Ticket

It Led to Complications

By AGNES G. BROGAN *********

There was the girl again! Billy Thornton frowned at her sudden entrance into the car-not that there was anything about the fresh, interested countenance to call forth a masculine frown. Jane Wilder was exactly the opposite kind of girl. But Billy never had met her and was more anxious to meet her than for anything else in the world, and, though she was always appearing in most unexpected places in a delightfully disturbing manner, still she, the ideal, remained as far distant as some beautiful, wonderful star.

"How," mused Billy to himself— "how in the world could the proper meeting be brought about?" Sometimes he was pleased to fancy a responsive interest in the girl's glance of quickly veiled recognition in their several encounters. "How-oh, how?"

"So glad to see you, dearie," mur-mured an old lady, bending over his divinity from the seat behind. "You are on your way to the child welfare meeting, of course. How busy you keep yourself with everything of an uplifting nature! I don't see how you do it."

The girl laughed as she turned around. Billy's heart thumped in sympathy with the clear joyousness of the sound. Never had he heard her voice or laugh before, and in nothing was she disappointing. Recklessly he allowed the windows of his office, where Braydon was waiting to see him upon an important commission, to fade into distance. He would sit here in this seat until the girl left the car.

"Oh, I am not voluntarily busy," she answered the old lady, "just drawn into the work by my friends. Meetings are all this week, you know-evenings for the men. We must interest voters. Lillis is one of the ushers, so it was she who solicited my aid, the dean of our old college being tonight's speaker."

"I would like to go," the old lady responded. Eagerly the girl fumbled in her purse. "So sorry," she said at length. "I have no more tickets, and admission is all by ticket invitation."

She jumped to her feet. "My corner!" she cried. "Goodby, Mrs. West." It was then that Billy heard the cov-"Goodby, Jane Wilder," said the old

"Jane Wilder." Mentally he echoed the name. "It was like her somehow." To him it sounded quaint and sweet. He was planning as he brushed through the crowd in the streets to obtain tickets in some manner for that evening's "welfare" meeting. It would be in the auditorium, of course, and she had said by invitation only. He remem-bered reading an account of the affair in the papers. Former pupils of the college represented by the speaker were to act as ushers. Surely one might speak to an usher, and surely one might select one's particular usher. Rilly began to whistle.

The low but merry tune seemed to annoy rather than cheer the tall young man who swung impatiently about in Billy's pet office chair.

"Great Scott," Braydon ejaculated in greeting, "you come in more than thirminutes late and happy as a May day!, I went without my own hinch in order to get over here on time, while you'-"Say." remarked Billy absently, "where can a fellow get tickets for tonight's child welfare meeting?"

Braydon's feet came to the floor with "What's the matter with you, a bang. Thornton?" he asked. illy waved the question impatiently

"Where can I get them?" he insisted. 村地市门的科学等。由 "How the dickens do I know?" the man replied Suddenly he glanced at Billy's eager face. "Why this unusual interest in a strange cause?" he asked. Deliberately Billy scated himself in n opposite chair. "There is a girt," an opposite chair. he answered seriously, "whom I am very anxious to meet. She will be there tonight. Among that old college gowd we must have mutual acquaint ances. If you can direct me to any one who might possibly have a spare ticket of invitation I'd be obliged. That's all."

His friend considered. "Why, there's Jack Maynard," he said. "His wife was a student at that college. I'll speak to him. Before we get down to siness, what's the name of this girl, Billy? Might know her myself."

Thornton's eyes took on their previous reminiscent gleam. "Wilder," he replated softly-"Jane Wilder."

In the desperate hope of hearing from Jack Maynard he lingered in the office long past closing time and at last was rewarded by the appearance of messenger bearing an envelope marked, with the date, "Ticket to auditorium meeting." Billy's sinking spirits soured to their highest level. That very even ing he should see her again at leastthat evening. There was not much time for dinner. The auditorium would be crowded.

For a moment as he waited in the entrance Billy's eyes roved excitedly among the white gowned flers of ush-Then at length he spied her. She was even more charming with her uncovered golden head than in the fetching hats of his remembrance, andyes, she was coming slowly toward A rather stout woman usher put out her hand.

Billy smiled in the direction of the on-

"Waiting," he said. Miss Jane Wilder's gaze was entirely impersonal Silently she accepted and read his ticket; then "Oh!" she breathed. Vaguely troubled, he glanced down at the golden head. Surprise, disappointment-what was it that showed for a moment in the eyes upraised to his?

"This way," she said, and Billy fol-lowed her down the aisle. But at the choice seat designated the stout overseeing usher reappeared.

"Must be some mistake," she argued loudly. "This section reserved for ushers and their busbands only. Let me see your ticket." Billy was about to apologize and withdraw-other fortunate possessors of nearby seats interestedly watched the outcome-when his director's voice sounded distinctly.

"It's all right, Mrs. Sayles," she said. "The ticket reads, 'Mr. and Mrs. Jack Maynard.' Mrs. Maynard is not here this evening, but she ushered at this afternoon's meeting."

Before Billy could collect his senses, before he could deny to the one girl in all the world this fatal imputation, the two white clad women, whispering, moved away together. And to this end had his scheming led him. The girl whose love he craved was now, through a senseless mistake, removed from him forever. Henceforth he was in her eyes but the wedded husband of a certain Mrs. Jack Maynard. Why hadn't he glanced at the confounded ticket instead of rushing with it like a fool?

Despairingly Billy looked about, after the oration, if here he might still find one friend, perhaps also of her ac-quaintance, but all were strangers, not one familiar face. Broodingly he made his way to the door. Out in the vesti-bule he lingered to throw on his coat, and presently from a merry, chattering throng she made her way to him.

The wonder of her sudden presence there at his side, the smile that was unmistakably for him, held him for the moment speechless.

"I hope the evening has been a pleas. ant one," she said and held out her hand. Billy saw that the hand was extending to him a small white enve-lope and took it. Then his dream abruptly ended.

"A ticket for the mothers' meeting tomorrow, Mr. Maynard," she said.
"Please give it to your wife."

Before his denying lips could even form a reply she had vanished. It was a decidedly grouchy Billy Thornton whom his tall friend found in the office the next day.

"Enjoy the uplift meeting?" Braydor casually inquired.

"The dence!" answered Billy. "As to that Miss Wilder," the friend went on "Happen to know people who in turn know her. Take you over to meet her if you like."

Billy's grouch evaporated. "To-night?" he asked crisply.
"Tonight," replied Braydon.
Billy banged down the cover of his desk in a spirit of joyful anticipation. In tell finances he would explain all to her. And after that—well, if be didn't win out in the old game of love it would not be because with all his almost as quickly as it does our good heart and soul he had not tried. He wished that Braydon would refrain from entering into that old business problem on the way to the bouse where he was to meet her. He wanted to go over in his mind the things that he would say.

Before he realized it they were in the arilliantly lighted reception room and barilliantly lighted reception room and barillia he was bowing before a sweet faced Paris. woman presented as Mrs. Jack Maynard, who immediately, taking Billy in charge, led him to a girlish figure at the farther end of the room.

"Miss Wilder," she announced rather absently and hurried back to his friend, The "one girl" smiled up at him.

"We are not quite strangers," she said, "but I am afraid you forgot to give the ticket to Mrs. Maynard. She was absent, I noticed, from the afternoon meeting, and you"-

"Miss Wilder"-it was the interrupting voice of Braydon-"come here just a moment, please, to settle a dispute."
Billy savagely ground his heel on the rug as others came to claim the girl's attention, keeping her from him. When was this silly affair to be straightened? Where was the real Jack Maynard?

Interminably the evening dragged and no opportunity for a further word with the girl of his dreams. In her eyes he was now no doubt just the uninteresting husband of her hostess, while in his eyes-Billy rapturously caught his breath as he looked at hershe grew each moment fairer. In sudden determination he crossed to where she sat before the piano. "I want to talk to you," he said. The girt's fingers rested upon the keys. Half turning, she looked up at

"I-I'm not Jack Maynard," Billy Blurted out desperately, "and I'm not married. It was a confounded-I beg your pardon-only a borrowed ticket." The laughing challenge of her eyes gave him sudden courage. "I have wanted-no, that's not the word-I have desired above all things for months to meet you," he went on, then paused. His eyes were saying more. "My name is Thornton," he ended abruptly-"William Thornton."

Miss Jane Wilder arose and stood be fore him. "I know it," she said quietly, "and I knew it all along. Back there at courch that day a friend pointed you out to me. Yesterday when Jack Maynard asked for a ticket for you to the meeting it was I who suggested that he lend you his." She laughed softly. "It was wicked of me to pretend," she admitted—"wicked, but-it did not take you so long to bring this"-she paused and held out her hand-"about." Fervently Billy grasped the proffered hand; fervently be bent to look down into the girl's face. Then deep and happily be sighed. "At last?" breathed

What Became of George Deering

By F. A. MITCHEL

A girl was working in a garden. Hearing a footstep on the walk, she looked up and saw a young man coming. Resting on her hoe, she looked at him intently.

"Morning." he said, doffing his hat when he reached her.

"Morning," responded the girl. "Can you tell me where the Deering a mile down the road on this side.

"I remember that there was a family living thereabout when I was a little girl, but I don't know what has be come of them.'

"Putting in beets?" looking down at "No; lettuce."

"Everybody's gardening this year." "Yes. We've got to garden or starve. Prices of provisions are prohibitive."

There was a brief silence. The girl continued to loosen the soil with her noe, then took up a rake and smoothed the ground from stones and tufts of grass. The young man showed no sign of moving on. "So you can't tell me where the Deering family have moved to?" be said presently.

"No, I can't." "Wasn't there a son, George?"

"George?" repeated the girl, as if trying to recall the person mentioned. "I've been told he was the worst boy in the county. No apple tree was safe from him, and as for a watermelon patch, they say he would carry off a melon as big as a small barrel under each arm "

"If he was like that the county is well rid of him," the girl suggested. "He was about eighteen when he left here, and I've been told that the night before he went he made love to one of the girls of the place, asking her to be his wife and telling her all sorts of yarns about how he was going to put her into a big house and dress her up fine, and all that. The next day he disappeared and never turned up again."

"There are lots of men like that in the world."

"Going to put in any potatoes?" "Reckon not Seed potatoes cost so much that I question if it would pay. It certainly wouldn't if the price of potatoes gets back to a reasonable fig-

"You say you don't remember George Deering?

"If he was any such fellow as you have described I don't want to remem-ber him."

She started another drill. The man took up a fork and opened the ground for her. When he had done so and femoved some of the earth with the hoe he said:

"That'll be easter for you." She thanked him and resumed her

Do you see that beech tree over there?" he asked, pointing to a tree some fifty yards distant.

"Of course I do." "I'm going over to look at it."

She made no comment, and he sauntered over to the tree, under which was a rustic bench. He glanced meditatively at the bench, but proceeded to the trunk of the tree and looked at 100 acres, fine 5 room house, good bars some letters that had been made by carving the bark. It had grown together so as to give them an appearance of having grown there naturally. Won't you please come here?" he called to the girl. She dropped a trowel and advanced toward him. When she reached him, pointing to the letters on the tree trunk, he asked:

"Whose initials are those?" "The upper ones?"

"Those are mine." 'And those beneath?"

"I can't see them," This was true; her eyes were dimmed with moisture.

"These letters," continued the young man, "stand for Eya Butterfield and George Deering. I know George very He's a faulty chap and no mistake, but there are palliating circumstances in his case. Sit down here and I'll tell you something about him."

He led her to the bench, where they sat down side by side. Then he continued:

"George struck bad luck from the start. He didn't write to Eva because he had nothing cheerful to write. At least he didn't send her a letter. He wrote one or two, but on reading them over they appeared to him so hopeless that he tore them up. Several years later the prospect before him mended, and he said, 'If I make some money I'll write to Eva.' He did make a little money, which gave him something to work with to make more, but when he sat down to write to Eva it occurred to him that he had treated her unpardonably. The only hope for him was to go to her and tell her so, and maybe she would forgive him.

"About that time a chance was offered him to get in on the ground floor to wait awhile. If the scheme turned out well he might make good the stupid boast he had made the night he parted from her. It turned out bigger than his wildest dreams."

The girl had been looking at the toes of her shoes. When he ceased speaking she turned her face to his. Not a word was spoken, but a great deal was done. After being locked for some time in each other's arms George asked:

"Did you know me?" "From the first moment I first saw

The principal of one of the leading schools of this country, in a public address said that the favorite work of most inventors is the invention of abor saving devices.

Time is money and time saved is money earned is the slogan of the great manufacturers, Financial gain without a corresponding moral gain is not progress. It is the proud boast of us Amer-icans that the United States is the wealthiest nation time has produced, but of our moral wealth we have little to say. There is no short cut in the development of moral worth. No inventor has been keen enough to perfect a scheme or device that will save time in the growth of a sturdy char-

Moral character is essentially the work of the patient mothers of our land. They know no eight-hour limit. From early merning to late at night the Christian mother bends to her task My boy, my girl, if the good mothers of this land should cease their labors for just one short week, the atmospher of evil would be so dense that love and or would be almost stifled.

While mother's labor of love is un- is solicited. limited and hardly recognizes fatigue. mother's drudgery may know a limit. An eight-hour day for mothers, and even less physical tasks, is possible if son and daughter are thoughtful and All of mother's work is measured by love, and love is really a hard taskmaster, Father, son, daughter, use your best endeavors to approximate mother's love—for you cannot match it. Does mother ever go on a strike? She might strike for more love, if that were possible, but never for shorter hours is there a case on record where any one has forgotten his pure, right-educating mother? The weight of year oes not dim the memories of child need, but rather intensifies them. Back in those happy innocent days there

There is a certain species of reptile found in all parts of the known world; its home is not so much in the jungles and wilderness as one might suppose This serpent frequents the haunts of men, showing by this that it is of a sociable character; cities, villages, and sparsely populated neighborhood each and all claim its attention. The name of this serpent is slander. We hope it has no abiding place in the home of any of our readers. The Home Circle department is the best antidote yet discovered for this vile reptile, and seldom fails to drive it from the home seldom falls to it weekly visits.

Don't wait 'till someone is gone from you to tell their virtues. Don't wait un-til your sister is far away in another land to tell her how helpful, how preted and the long sleep comes before you make mother know what a beautiful blue her eyes, how tender her heart, and how dearly you love her. Tell it all yearned for to brighten it, and to warn; and encourage the pilgrim by the way-

Let the sunshine into the gloomy rooms have a couch to lie on, a plane to play on; in fact, a home to live in; and chairs, instead of a mausoleum of gloomy elegance, when everything is for show and nothing to be used. one wherein a sense of hospitality and good cheer exudes from the very tables that an untidy mother has disobedient children, and, while neither parents or children may realize the why or where-fore of it yet there is always a lack of respect and an indifference to the authority of a mother who takes no pride

The meanest men in the world are those who have allowed themselves to drift away from their mothers and forget all about them. The best and bravest men in the world are those who have never been so proud as when doing something pleasant for the kind old mother.

Do not choose a vocation for your daughter—do not insist that she bc-come only a lady, when she might be a genius. Who knows but that the tal-ent you repressed and strangled might have electrified the world. Give it free scope and a hearty welcome.

PRINCESS THEATER

QUITS BUSINESS. The Princess theater, the leading and best equipped theater perhaps in the Bir Sandy valley, under the manage-ment of Cockill & Bartley will suspend doing business on July 30th. Cancella-tion notice of their lease has been sent to the owners of the building. The equipment of the Princes has been purchased by the new star theater owners. On account of other interests managers have'nt time to give individual attention to the show and tant clerk.

NEW TRAIN SCHEDULE IS BITTERLY PROTESTED.

The C. & O. Railway company thinks that one express train, one mail ser-vice and rotten passenger service is mass meeting held at the court house sufficient for Hellier. They may think in Pikeville last Tuesday evening in the that, but it is absolutely absurd of interest of the Republican party. Mr. anyone making or suggesting this change. A big protest is seen, where the coal companies, the merchants, the office. traveling public is bitterly protesting against the new schedule. Folks leaving Pikeville early in the merning are unable to return same day. People leaving Helier in the aftermoon are unable to return until the afternoon of next day. Mail is received on e a day, and the mail is sent out once a day, and the same thing of the express on account of the present way the schedule is arranged. The C. & O. gets a big revenue out of Heller, and each and every climen should protest to the General Superintendent of the C. & O railway company to restore service as previously, which is bad enough. The Big Sandy division must take all the discarded cars of the C. & O. and they look as though they were never painted in the last twenty years. We are THE DOGGONEST willing to put up, at least, with the YOU EVER READservice as previous to the present with the rotten service the C. & O. is tendering Hellier now.

NEW SHOW BUILDING NEARING COMPLETION.

The big new Star theater show building, that is now well under way of construction is rapidly nearing completion. This theater will have an enormous seating capacity. The Star theater has purchased practically the entire equipment of the Princess the ater, and this will be installed in the Star theater is building. The owned by a corporation consisting of home interests. The new building is attracting quite a bit of attention on account of the oddity of construction.

The entrance of the theater all be where the stage is built in. In other words, when you step in the theater everyone will be looking right at you so come "dressed up."

FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC ON MOUNTAIN SIDE.

A ringe picnic was the scone on th mountain side, near the Hallier station on the 4th day of July. The church members and the children of the Sunday school class participated. Those present were, including, Miss Lena Lyons and her best fellow. Louis Pigg, Miss Flo Lyons and ber best friend, Chas. A. Scott; Mrs. M. A. Lenton. Lookout, and a big host of others. Various games were played and a jolly time was reported. Delicious ice crean. into custody by the police and removed was served free on the grounds that lighted the multitudes of folks. OCCUPYING STAR THEATER BUILDING.

T. H. Fire & Sen have moved from their former location near the Princess theater building, into the building vacated by the Star theater On account of a continual increase of business. Fife was compelled to seek more spacious headquarters. Fife intends to equip his new place first class in every detail and will have the finest ex clusive grecery store in Hellier.

J. B. EPLING MOVES-

J. B. Epling, who conducts a groc-store near the C. & O. station, has moved into the building vacated by T. H. Fife & Son. Mr. Epling says have a first class grocery and fruit store.

THESE DAYS.

(By W. J. Lampton) (From Pearson's Magazine, 1907.)

What is to-day That it should be worse Than the early days? Ow the modern ways. Larker fall the light That the years have shed? Is the right

Under the wheels of progress By the side of the road to success Bleeding and bruised and broken

Left in forgetfulness. Is truth Stronger in youth Than in age?

Feeble with years And more slow On the path that leads To the world's needs? Does man reach up or down To take the victor's crown

Of progress in science, art and commerce? In all the works that plan And purpose to accomplish The betterment of man?

Does the soul mar With the broadening of thought? Does the heart harden By what the hand has wrought? Who shall say That decay Marks the good of today? Who shall state

That God grows less

As man grows great? "BETTERTON SAYS: Practice econ omy by using Golden Dream Coffee. Return 10 empty cans with lide to your grocer and receive a 1 pound can free, which is equivalent to a saving of 3c a can or most 12 per cent. Start to saving cans to-day. BETTERTON-RUPERT COFFEE CO., Ashland, Ky.

FRUIT SIRUPS.

Julees For Jelly Making Kept Without Sugar Till Need For Them Arises. Fruit juices for use later in jelly making can be sterilized and bottled without sugar and made into jellies at the housewife's convenience. This enables her to do with fewer jelly glasses and to distribute her pur chases of sugar for jelly making through the year. Moreover, with the bottled juice she can make a greater variety of jellies, as juices which will not jell can be put up when the fruit is ripe and combined later with fruits that will jell, or fruit ripening at differ
